6,000 Booklets On Drug Abuse Distributed By Citizens Group

Mr. Edward Borgatti's office in the Agawam Police Dept., was an exceptionally busy place Saturday morning, Nov. 21st. There was no evidence of a generation gap when 30 drivers and 50 young people gathered to obtain, for delivery to all Agawam families, a booklet titled: "Guardians Against Drug Abuse."

The publication and distribution of this highly acclaimed booklet were sponsored by the Agawam Citizens Organization together with contributions from local town businesses and other organizations. The ACO committee which assisted Mr. Borgatti, executive vice-president of Dangerous Drugs, with the mailing and distribution of this booklet is as follows: Mrs. Walter Meissner, Jr.; Mrs. Daniel Ciak, Mrs. James St. Germain, Charles Brantley, William Hall, Russell Haynes, Mrs. G. Fred Affleck, Miss Marcia Della Guistina and Mr. James Bruno.

Westbank Launches "Direct Attack" Against Pollution

WEST SPRINGFIELD — A "direct attack" against air pollution was launched recently by Western Bank and Trust Company.

The attack, according to James H. Buckley, Jr., Westbank chairman of the board, is aimed at alerting the people of the lower Pioneer Valley to the polluted air they breathe and then asking them to follow a few, anyone-can-do-it type suggestions.

Addressing a gathering of newsmen at a luncheon here, William A. Franks, Jr., Westbank president, emphasized that "Westbank is not being altruistic, nor is it trying to climb aboard the ecology band wagon in this campaign. The physical health, as well as the financial well-being, of a community is of direct concern to a bank. For only in a healthy community can a bank such as ours continue to grow."

Franks, an avid sportsman, said he was jealous of the virtually unpolluted environment of the Northwoods and argued that there was no real reason why Massachusetts should not enjoy the sparkling brooks and biting-cold air of the North.

"I'm tired of streams so polluted that fish can't live in them. And air so dirty it's practically impossible to see the sun. Fog should be caused by moisture droplets, not by suspended dirt."

Buckley stressed that both he and Franks were native to the area and that "from a professional viewpoint our futures and that of our families are irreversibly tied to this area. Therefore, we're going to fight to (Please Turn To Page 5)

Agawam Cancer Crusade Results

Final figures from headquarters of the American Cancer Society for the Agawam-Feeding

Hills area have been received on the 1970 Cancer Crusade that originated with the House to House campaign held on April 29th.

With $4,330.00 as this year's goal, the amount reached is $4,300.76 (House to house $2,446.76).

Considering the economy and 'tight-money' situation, the net results are most encouraging.

In behalf of Richard Christiansen, area director, and Dean Cushing, Massachusetts director of the 1970 Cancer Crusade, Mr. Gary Peterson, Agawam co-chairman, personal thanks are extended to the townspeople, area businesses, precinct leaders, committee members and the numerous many who have made this year's campaign a success.

Dec. 15 Deadline For Veterans' Real Estate Abatements

Massachusetts veterans who are eligible for real estate tax abatements, must file applications with their local assessors before December 15th or lose the cash benefit, Charles N. Collatos, Commissioner of Veterans' Services, advised this week.

Following an agreement with all Boards of Assessors throughout the State, the Veterans Administration was relieved of the expense of mailing more than 70,000 certifications of War Service disabilities to the same veterans each year. Now, the Veterans Administration simply notifies the local assessor when a veteran becomes disqualified by reduction of his disability below 10 percent.

In past years, these certification cards served as reminders to veterans to apply to their local assessors for their real estate tax abatements, Commissioner Collatos explained.

Many veterans apparently feel the tax abatement is automatic because many hundreds of veterans have so far failed to apply to their assessors for abatement forms, Commissioner Collatos reports. Only those veterans who did not obtain a certification in the past need apply to the Veterans Administration before filing with their assessors.

Under Massachusetts law, World War I, World War II and Korean veterans, plus those who served in the Armed Forces since February 1, 1955 and who have a disability rated at 10 percent or more, may be entitled to a $2,000 real estate tax exemption, or greater, depending on the degree of disability. Widows whose husbands died in the service or died of service-incurred injuries are entitled also, as are Gold Star parents of servicemen or women who died in active service or as a result of wounds incurred in active service.

Now We Understand

This past week two meetings were held by groups disturbed over existing situations here in town. One was composed of a group who owned land used for farming and the other apparently opposed to H.U.D. supported housing.

May I write a few comments concerning each. About the allegedly overtaxed farm land, I have made remarks on previous occasions. I still insist that economically you cannot tax any item to a greater extent than its ability to produce an income. This ability to produce income, by the capitalization process, determines the value of that producer. A fair rate of return must be allowed in the capitalization process. A "rule of thumb" has usually set the rate at 10% — to use round figures, if your income on a piece of property netted you, without taxes, one thousand dollars, then that property should have a market value of ten thousand dollars. Of your ten percent earnings, three percent should be allocated to taxes using the National Average. Again, if your property had a value of ten thousand dollars, you should expect to pay $300 in taxes per year. I suggest that you use this formula on your 1970 tax bill figures to note the comparison. If you use the formula with farm land, you will not be in the "ballpark."

So what happened? Somehow, somewhere, sometime, someone had to make a decision in the new appraisals that farm land had to be evaluated at its optimum potential. I presume the inference was associated with building lots. It is at this point that I start my contest with this reasoning. First, who is to determine what that potential is? Some farm land is in industrially zoned areas. Are we to believe that tomorrow this same land will house a prosperous factory and assess it today on that potential. Secondly, it has been admitted that appraisal personnel did not actually walk each property and resorted primarily to maps for information. Reclamation of some of our land for its "zoned" use could possibly cost several times its sale value. And then we have the last factor, which has been discussed so often, do you want any open land left in town or is it wiser to turn it all into homes. I have read quotes wherein only 20% of our land is used for building. Has anyone calculated what percent is not usable without costly reclamation. This is the sad part because, in reality, the land best suited to agriculture, without great expense, is well suited for house lots and so the transition takes place. If the process continue we will be eventually raising our "beans" on marginal agricultural land which would mean the end of the Agawam Farmer.

And while the above discussion goes on in one room, in another room a meeting is held in apparent opposition to the promotion of HUD housing. I want to state firmly that any discussion of a particular grade of housing is definitely selfish, unfair, perhaps illegal, and definitely "off-base". It is selfish because it fails to give a just position to those with incomes lower than those doing the complaining. It creates a "stigma" on the possessions and families of those owning HUD homes. This is unfair. Whereas the Federal and State governments are associated with its promotion, to pass action against continued development perhaps would be illegal. Whereas I tend to support the position of the farmer in the first section of this editorial, I now rise to his defense sincerely and ask the proponents of "Anti-HUD" what they really expect the farmer to do with his overtaxed land. Now that the above proponents are safely nestled in their comfortable $20,000-$25,000 homes, they don't want anyone with less income than they to own homes in Agawam. And furthermore they want the farmer to split his land, since he can't afford to farm any longer into one or two-acre lots and sell them to the general public. Such a large and high-priced lot needs a $50,000 home to support it. I want someone to prove to me that this value home can be readily marketed in Agawam today.

I repeat "a fair balance" is ideal but in the "bind" who will be forced to succumb?

Sincerely,
George L. Reynolds

The Westbank campaign, which has been reviewed and endorsed by government officials, is based on a test patch and pamphlet which will be given away without charge at the three Westbank offices.

The patch, which is white when removed from its sealed package, turns reddish upon exposure to polluted air, the density of the color indicating the severity of the pollution.

Besides the patch, the anti-pollution kit includes a four-page booklet which suggests things the individual can do to fight pollution at home and at work.

Using the watchwords "Be a pollution warden," the campaign is intended to inspire youth and adults to take positive action in the battle against pollution. It will go through the end of this year.

Antipollution kits may be obtained free at Westbank's main office at 11 Central Street, West Springfield, or at its branches on Riverdale Road and in Feeding Hills.

stances when I have come up on a hunter that had just downed a deer and he stood helplessly looking down at the animal with the knife in his hand not knowing what to do first. Sometimes you feel magnanimous and take out your knife and do the necessary task for the tyro. I have seen Noel Brown do this many times. Other times, I will just direct the operation and let the hunter get his hands wet. This way he knows when the fun ends and the labor begins.

A difference of opinion seems to exist on two phases of field dressing a deer. These include slitting the throat to facilitate bleeding and removing scent glands from the legs to prevent contamination of the meat.

According to some, both procedures are necessary. Anyone who has gutted a deer, however, knows that internal bleeding leaves little room for the throat-cutting ritual. As for the scent glands, if you don't touch them, you won't contaminate the meat when you attend to the field dressing. That's the only way scent can be transferred to the meat.

If the deer has to be dragged over a considerable distance, I will only slit from the anus to the chest cavity, remove the stomach, lungs and heart. Put the liver and heart in a plastic bag, fold the front legs up over the neck, tie the drag rope by the use of half-hitches around the folded legs and neck. This method will keep the upper part of the animal off the ground when dragging thus making it easier. If it is a buck, I fold the legs in the same manner, place one half-hitch around the neck and legs and the final hitch around the base of the antlers. The upper part of the body is off the ground when dragging.

However, if the drag is short, I will open the deer up from the anus to the throat, clean him out completely, wipe out the cavity with a rag or dry grass. When I get the animal home, I wipe him out again with a rag soaked with water. Some feel that this will soften the meat, I haven't found this to be so.

Don't be careless or indifferent with any phase of the operation, from the time the deer is down to the time it has been cut up and packaged for the freezer. It has cost you a sizable sum of money in the first place, and a sloppy job could turn an otherwise delicious meal into a disaster.

Local Amateur Hockey Club Undefeated In G.S.A.H.L.

The Agawam Hockey Club played a strong 16 Acres Aces amateur hockey team on Sunday evening, Nov. 29th, at 7 p.m. at the Blunt Park area in Springfield.

So far this season the team is undefeated in the Greater Springfield Amateur Hockey League and is tied for first place in the Williston Amaetur Hockey League with a record of seven (7) wins and one (1) loss. Coaches Bob Fassnacht, Joe Faucette, and Russ Ramah are satisfied with the A.H.C. performance to date and will not vary their starting line up with Pete Longhi, Buddy Ramah, and Mark Faucette on the front line and Brian Telford and Jamie Fenton on defense and Brian Colby in goal.

Other players who will see considerable service are: Tommy Fenton, John Martino, Tim Morrissey, Frank and Bill Wysocki, John and Al Sapelli.

New-comers who have been impressive are Barry Telford, John Girard, Brian Keeley, Tom Wysocki, Keits Moreau, Brian Blackjack, and Joe Norman.

The Club has been in existence for four (4) years and has played in tournaments in Pittsfield, Mass.; Hartford, Conn., and Winchendon, Mass.

Plans for this year include home and away games with Burlington, Vt.; New Haven, and Hartford, Conn.; Burlington, Brookline, Pittsfield, Winchendon, and West Roxbury, Mass. Also scheduled for this year is the first annual Alumni game which will be played at Blunt Park sometime during the Christas vacation.

Ex-players who hopefully will face the current team are as follows: Tim Coffey, Larry Hall, Jr., Mark Jenks, Paul and Mike O'Brien, Bill and Duff Sapelli, Mike Losito, Mike and Bill Morrissey, Bill Phauf, Mike Drawnowski, Steve Kamak, John Archer, Peter Piepuel, Nick Longhi, Preston Perrault, and Mark Sullivan.

All home games are played on Sunday evenings at the Blunt Park Arena, Springfield, Mass., at 7 p.m. Why not support the team!

All boys who are interested in trying out for the team should contact E. X. Colby, Manager, 736-1516.
